

A Changing Landscape: ND Child Maltreatment Rises with Drug Crime

Two out of every three youth that are served by both the child welfare and juvenile justice systems have a parent/guardian that was previously arrested or incarcerated. Research shows that prior history of arrest or incarceration of a family member places a child at increased risk of maltreatment.

